Do you remember what sparked the crazy idea to convert a bus into a camper or a tiny home? A flash from the past? A Skoolie at Burning Man? Maybe the idea just popped into your head one day.

My wife and I bought our first bus in 1984, it was on a whim. It was a lime green 1968 Blue Bird conventional church bus. The plan was to make it into a camper. That plan was a good one and in the long run, it prompted both my wife and I into passenger transportation careers.

Whatever the reason for that wonderful spark, the day has finally arrived and you are now the proud owner of a yellow school bus. Driving your bus home, you are thinking about how you are going to make it your own and all the future adventures for your family and you. You are probably thinking what are we going to do first: pull the seats or maybe paint the bus or leave it yellow. Yellow is a nice, cool color.