

Bus Camping Checklist (Part 2 of 2)

By Brian Smith

Editor's Note:

In part one of this article, Brian from OutsideHow.com shared with us some bus camping checklists that could be edited for one's own family use. Here in Part 2, Brian discusses how to make your camping trip a safe one.

Bus Camping Safety Tips

While bus camping is a fun adventure for you and your family, it's important to stay safe and alert. These are some guidelines that my family practices for ensuring our safety while camping.

1. Choose a safe campsite.

You don't want to park your bus near the edge of a ravine or a bears' den. You'll also want to consider the amenities that the campsite offers. Do you or a family member have certain medical issues that require you to be near the restrooms or a public phone? Does your campsite have ample resources for water? Does your campsite have wildlife officials or security officers nearby? These are all things to consider when choosing the best campsite for you and your family.

2. Always be aware of the weather.

I advise taking a weather radio and extra batteries on bus camping trips. Many people rely on

RF MOGUL WE ARE EVERYWHERE YOU WANT TO BE

With an RF Mogul universal Satellite system you can watch Satellite TV wherever you go

- RVs
- Fifth Wheels
- Trailers
- Motorhomes
- Bus Conversions, and anything else mobile

(801) 895-3392
WWW.RFMOGUL.COM

